

"BIG TIM" BACK FROM TRIUMPH

Representative Sullivan Returns from Washington, Where He Received Ovation and Defeated Party Leader in House.

KEPT MCLELLAN ON WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE.

Likes the Capital and Congress Better than Albany and Legislature Because All Is "On the Level."

DIM "Big Tim" hypnotize those Congressmen at Washington? Did he stop them from throwing Col. George B. McClellan off the Ways and Means Committee? Did "Tim" throw the harpoon into the new minority leader, John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, who thought it was up to him to create a vacancy in the committee by ousting the son of "Little Mac"?

Well, just ask "Big Tim," or "Little Tim," or Col. "Mike" Padden, or "Larry" Mulligan, or "Sam" Wolf, the Mayor of Yorkville. They were there at Washington—when the WILLIAMSON coup was tried, and they can each testify that "Big Tim" just routed the minority leader and his gang.

All on the Level.

"How do I like Congress? Oh, Congress is all right. The work is better—more dignified—than up in the Senate at Albany. They haven't got any bills to climb down at Washington. There is as level as a plain. Everything is on the level down there. Up at Albany, why, there's nothing but hills, geographical and political."

"Yes, I guess me and Congress will get along all right together. It's a fine body of men all told, but they haven't got any deuces on our delegation from New York. We have seventeen of the best that ever went into Congress from New York, and every man a true Democrat."

"Where is my seat? Why it's just where I can fasten my eye on the speaker and get his attention. It is not too near, nor yet too far. It's near enough for me to be heard when I want to, and I don't have to yell at that. Do I propose to be heard? Well, not until the Republican members try their funny business, and then we New York members will be heard."

"When I took my seat I found myself in a great auditorium bigger than any theatre in this town. Oh, but they were a grand looking body of men. I noticed a lot of bald heads, but they weren't all bald. They were all men."

"Col. McClellan makes a fine figure in the House and I am sorry he is going to quit, but, of course, he can't hold down two jobs at once. He couldn't be expected to run New York and the Government besides. Either one of them jobs is big enough for any one man. Talking about Col. McClellan reminds me of the stories printed that they are going to try and oust him off his committee. Now the fact of that matter is that there are bunches of the members who want to succeed Col. McClellan as member of the Ways and Means Committee. There is a great rivalry for committee ships discovered.

Well, I suppose that's natural, for all the work is done in committees down at Washington. There were so many fellows after McClellan's committee ship that there was bound to be friction. We saw that at a glance. What's the use of saving a fiction? Peace for yours," I told the aspirants, and then I told Col. McClellan to stick. If there is going to be any fiction let's have it after Col. McClellan is gone and re-elected from Congress to take his job as Mayor of New York.

"Did 'Big Tim' get a proper reception at Washington?" asked Sam Wilson. "Well, there is nothing too good for the King, you know. Why, Tim is going to be the biggest man in Congress. He's got those fellows down there scared to death already. I went to Washington with him and saw him and Col. 'Mike' Padden. 'Little Tim,' 'Larry' Mulligan, and host of the boys went along. Why, it was 'Tim' here and 'Tim' there all along Pennsylvania Avenue. Monday night you should have seen the audience rise up and shout for the King. They were all shouting 'Tim' into our box and the band played 'See the Conquering Hero Comes.'"

REFUSED TO WAIT AT WINTER RATE

Male Servitors at Dennett's Park Row Restaurant Decline to Accept Reduction of Wages and Go on Strike.

SILENCE FOLLOWS STORM.

Scale Reduced from $12 to $10 Weekly—Strikers' Places Soon Filled by Eager Men Willing to Work at Any Price.

And silence, like a pout, came To beat the blows of sound. —Mad Post.

Perhaps you noticed the unwanted stillness about the lower part of the city last night? It seemed "as silent as the grave."

It was all because not a dish rattled nor a voice roared "Dror one—ham and—white wings, sunny side up!" in the far-famed restaurant or quick lunch emporium of one Dennett, at No. 25 Park row.

There was a strike on. Wages were suddenly reduced from the higher summer standard to the lower winter schedule. It was announced at 8 o'clock, just as the men waiters were relieving the girls who served during the day hours. And then the men refused to go to work.

Manager E. H. Graham told the relieving force that for the next six months the 13 persons would get but $10, and the $5 "omnibuses" only $5 a week. The outcry was loud. It was succeeded by the great stillness.

For an hour the eggs in the kitchen scrambled around among themselves and the oysters worked themselves up into states, for there were only two loyal girl waitresses to serve them. The other girls had gone home where the men came. When the men struck, the two girls—one of whom Manager Graham says has made between $2 and $3 every day in the past—were left alone. The two girls—one of whom Manager Graham says has made between $2 and $3 every day in the past—were left alone.

"Things were going along smoothly this morning. There were lots of persons at the doors all night after the news of the strike spread, each willing to work for $10 a week—or $5, if need be. Said Mr. Graham:

"Last night was the time for the announcement of the winter rates in all the eleven Dennett restaurants in Manhattan and Brooklyn. It was a regular thing. During the summer we pay the higher prices because so many waiters can get good work at the summer resorts and city help is scarce."

And the religious mottoes on the walls of the emporium beamed: "Trust in the Lord. He will provide." And "Watch your hat and coat."

John Williams was arraigned in police court to-day, charged with stealing $7 worth of bric-a-brac from a Japanese store in Fifth avenue. During the night he had tried to commit suicide by hanging himself in his cell at Police Headquarters.

It cost Mr. Low $100,000 aside from his $15,000 salary to be Mayor.

When his financial interests are straightened out he will go to Europe and travel for several months. It is probable that he will not return until the end of May, when he will go to his summer home at Northport Harbor for a long rest, remaining there until the Presidential campaign opens.

The Republican Committee has already asked him to take the stump for Roosevelt, and it is probable that he will accept the invitation. There is said to be no likelihood that he will again become President of Columbia University.

The Mayor's plans for the months to follow his retirement from office have been made tentatively. To an intimate friend the Mayor told of the interests that would occupy his mind for a time.

For a month he will busy himself with the cares of his vast personal estate. Many of the securities will be rearranged, for when he was elected two years ago he disposed of all interest in concerns that were to have any dealings with the city.

The many duties of the Mayor have prevented him from paying much attention to his private affairs, and it is said that his estate has made no money during his administration. While his private interests were at a standstill he spent much money. Dinners for Prince Henry and other dignitaries cost enormously, and were paid for out of the Mayor's private funds.

The low summer home at North East Harbor, Me., has been closed since his election, and during the warm months the family has occupied a house at Rye, from which the Mayor could come to the city each day. It is estimated that
